Tremont Co-op News

With the holiday season fully upon us now, Tremont Coop would again like to thank all the customers of ours for another safe and bountiful harvest season. Total corn and soybean volume was just shy of 2014's record harvest, and total soybean volume was the most we've ever handled. Although we came up just short of 2014's record corn crop, the quickness that this year's crop dried down allowed many of our customers to fill bin space that might not have been used in past years, allowing them to capture some of the carry in the market as they wait for prices to rise.

Unfortunately, prices still remain down from highs of a few years ago, but when looking at the overall size of the crop, it is hard to be too surprised. As the North American harvest is all wrapped up now, many are now looking at the South American growing season and looking to see how their crop will fare, especially after last year's later-season crop failed to produce what many analysts had penciled in, resulting in some higher prices in late spring and early summer. However, once the rains came in late June and early July to help our corn crop get through pollination, prices soon gave way and haven't been too far out of this range they've been stuck in since mid-August.

As we turn and look towards the new year, we want to remind our patrons that we have a staff ready to help you with all of your marketing and settlement questions. We want to thank all of our outside help and supervisors at both Tremont and Adwell for another successful harvest season and for keeping the lines moving. We want to also thank our office staff for their long hours during harvest ensuring all our settlements and payments are processed in a timely manner and handling all the questions our customers have. And finally, once again a big "Thank You" to our patrons for your support and patience as we wrap up another harvest season and look forward to helping you throughout the coming year as we prepare for spring planting season.

Merry Christmas and God Bless from all of us at Tremont Co-op Grain Co.
